WILDCAT STRIKE COMES TO END

$200,000 Library Is Proposed

Voters to Decide on Nov. 5

A plan to establish a public library owned and operated by the city government was put in motion by the Monessen City Council this morning.

Acting at the request of the board of directors of the Civic Library Association, a private group which now operates the library here, City Council voted to put a $200,000 bond issue before the voters at the Nov. 5 election.

The funds would be used to construct a new library building at a site on Donner Ave. between Third and Fourth Sts. The site is now owned by the Civic Library Association.

Under the plan, which the Library Association and members of Council have been discussing for several months, the assets of the association will be transferred to the City once the bond issue is approved.

Submit Resolution

Besides the property on Donner Ave., the association owns a three-story brick building on Fifth St., in which the Library is presently housed

Appearing before Council this morning were President Charles C Throop of the Library Association and Harry R. Pore Jr., chairman of the association's building committee

Throop submitted a copy of a resolution adopted by the Library's board of directors formally recommending the establishment of the municipally owned and operated library

He pointed out that provision for library service has become part of the responsibility of the modern city government

Pore expressed the appreciation of the directors of the Library Association for the "cordial reception" which the idea of a municipally owned library has received at the City Hall.

"We promise our earnest cooperation in seeking the support of the people of Monessen for this project," Pore added.

After hearing the two library officials, Council turned to other business on its agenda It later returned to the library project.

First and second readings were given to a proposed ordinance expressing the desire of the corporate authorities of the City of Monessen . . . to increase the indebtedness of said city. . .in the amount of $200,000 for the purpose of erecting a public library, and authorizing a public election and giving of notice thereof."

The ordinance was introduced by Councilman John Kotch Jr Final action will be taken at the next meeting, Sept. 25.

On motion by Councilman David R. Victoria, seconded by Kotch, Council gave formal approval to REQUESTS NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY — Charles Throop, president of the Monessen Civic Library Association, appeared before City Council today to request a public library building. Council later authorized a referendum at the Nov. 5 election on a $200,000 bond issue to finance the project. Listening intently are Councilmen David Canova and John Kotch, Jr.

Frank Ezerski Elected 'Full' City Solicitor

Frank P. Ezerski Jr. was elected "full" solicitor for the city of Monessen today.

He has shared the solicitor duties for the past three years with Judge David H. Weiss, who was required by law to resign that position last month when he was sworn in as a Westmoreland County Court common pleas jurist.

Ezerski will receive $3,600 per year in his new capacity. Previously he and Judge Weiss had each received $2,250. In effect, the city will be saving $900 yearly in legal expenses under the new arrangement.

Mayor Hugo Parente recommended that Ezerski be made sole solicitor during this morning's council meeting. Councilman David Canova promptly made the motion and Councilman John Kotch Jr seconded. The motion was passed unanimously.

Ezerski, who has practiced law in Monessen since 1951, was named Westmoreland County assistant district attorney on Aug. 30, also filling a vacancy which was, in effect, created by the resignation of Judge Weiss. That job will pay Ezerski $4,800 annually.

Ezerski is a Monessen native, the son of Mrs and the late Frank P. Ezerski His father was a political figure in the city for many years

Ezerski graduated from Monessen High School in 1937. He spent a year at Massanutten Prep School at Woodstock, Va., then entered Duke University. In 1941, he enlisted in the Army and served with

Parente's Statement Supporting Library

Following is the text of a statement Mayor Hugo Parente read to City Council this morning in support of a new public library building proposed by the Monessen Civic Library Association:

"At this time I should like to bring up for consideration of this Council a matter of vital interest and even of some great significance to the citizens of our community; and I refer to the Monessen Civic Library.

"The Monessen Civic Library Association, composed of leading citizens of our community, is in the process of building a new public library.

"I think we are all aware of the progress made to date by the library association. It is a known fact that the association has given this matter much careful thought and has even made a scientific appraisal of the community's needs with respect to a new library. A suitable site has been acquired and work already begun on the demolition of the existing unsightly structures. All this does no more than lay a solid foundation upon which to build. It now appears that the Monessen Civic Library Association is ready to do just that. But, there remains the matter of financing a new building.

'Progressive Theme'

"In keeping with the progressive theme of this administration it might be well for Council to consider at this time governmental action in support of this project, particularly in view of the sizeable amount of money which is required and also because the statutes of the Commonwealth permit a local subdivision to participate in projects of this nature

"Then too, it is a well known fact that a good-well-equipped library is a vital necessity in any pro-

Voters to Decide On Fluoridation

City Council this morning agreed to let the public decide if there is to be water fluoridation in Monessen by voting unanimously to put the issue to a public vote on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

The decision was made after Mrs. John McGovern, chairman of the Water Fluoridation Committee in Monessen, appeared before Council this morning.

It was Council's final action during a meeting which lasted past noon.

Get Okay for Trial Pictures

INDIANA, Pa. (UP)—For the first time in Indiana County history, news photographs are being taken of a murder trial.

Judge Edwin M. Clark granted a newspaper photographer the right to take pictures in the courtroom during the trial of Harry Gates, who is accused of slaying his landlord, Louis Turk, last June 15.

Frank Sipos, of the Indiana Gazette, was given permission to take pictures without flash bulbs "as long as his picture-taking does not interfere in any way with court procedure."

Panepinto To Get New Hearing

Monessen City Council this morning voted to reopen the controversial case involving the City of Monessen and Philip Panepinto, who was discharged as a policeman last July.

Council made the decision after Louis Manderino, counsel for Panepinto, submitted a petition stating he has three witnesses he "requests Council to hear."

He said the three witnesses were "not available" when Panepinto was given a hearing before Council last July. Panepinto was fired at that hearing on the recommendation of Mayor Hugo J. Parente, who charged Panepinto with failure to make hourly calls to police headquarters and "sleeping on duty."

After hearing Manderino's petition this morning, Parente said:

"Since it was on my recommendation that Panepinto was fired and because Manderino states he has new witnesses, I recommend that Council reopen the case."

Councilman John Kotch Jr voiced an objection to reopening the case, stating,

Kotch Objects

"Why weren't these witnesses here when we heard the case before? If they were interested, they should have been here."

Manderino explained that in many cases "witnesses just can't be available"

In his petition, Manderino also asked that he be permitted to subpoena witnesses if necessary, including his and the City's.

Kotch again objected, but relented when City Solicitor Frank P Ezerski stated that Manderino "has every right by law to make such a request"

Ezerski, too, recommended that the case be reopened

"If there are witnesses we did not hear at the last hearing, it is only right-and-fair that we hear them," Ezerski said.

Councilman David Victoria also agreed to reopen the case, saying there is a "man's job at stake here."

Sept. 25 Hearing

Council then voted unanimously to reopen the case and hear the three witnesses at 11 a. m. Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Since being fired last July, Panepinto appealed his ouster to the Westmoreland County courts, stating he "has suffered an injustice." He asked to be reinstated.

The court granted the appeal and set Aug. 22 as the hearing date. However, it granted the City a delay on the grounds that "several" of its witnesses could not be available on the Aug 22 date.

Manderino asked for another delay pending action on his position this morning.

In other business, Council gave the second of three required readings of the proposed Housing Code Ordinance. At Ezerski's suggestion, Council voted to advertise the ordinance beginning Sept. 25, the

Charleroi Spot Hit by Police In Lottery Raid

State Police from the Belle Vernon barracks raided a Charleroi billiard parlor yesterday at 12:45 p.m. and arrested the proprietor on a lottery charge.

The raid took place at Penn Billiards, located at 631 Fallowfield Ave Troopers said they found baseball pool slips, tip boards and punch boards

Arrested was the proprietor, Joseph Butera, 30, of 722 Fallowfield Ave, Charleroi

Butera was charged with traffic in lottery at a hearing before Justice of the Peace William McCollum. He waived a hearing and was placed under $1,000 bond pending the next term of Washington County court.

Scattered Rains To Do Little to Ease Drought

Scattered afternoon rains yesterday will do little to ease drought conditions in Western Pennsylvania, weather bureau authorities reported today

A total rainfall of about a tenth of an inch was reported at U. S Lock No 4 in Monessen throughout yesterday. That was far short of the "soaking rain" which agriculture officials claim is necessary to bring back district farmlands.

The weather bureau said there was a chance of scattered thundershowers today.

Yesterday's rain in the area was preceded by some wind gusts Sections of Rostraver Twp reported heavy winds

At the Litchfield Farm, operated by Thomas Cocain, Belle Vernon R D 3, winds blew off the roof of a shed housing equipment and carried it almost 20 feet away

Some trees were also blown down in the area.

The weather acted up early this morning, too, when a blanket of fog shrouded a good part of the district, forcing motorists to drive slowly.

One inch of rain fell yesterday in the drought-stricken Philadelphia area, the heaviest amount since April when the state's worst drought in 85 years began.

Pittsburgh Steel Grants Hearing To 13 Workers

The blooming mill department of the Monessen plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Co. was returning to normal production today following the end of a wildcat walkout which had idled nearly 400 workers for five days.

United Steelworkers District 15 Director Eugene Maurice said the strikers voted to go back to their jobs at a meeting last night in the CIO Building.

Soaking pit crews were immediately recalled for the midnight shift A company spokesman said that blooming mill operations should be back to normal in 24 to 48 hours. He said employees will be called back as needed.

Anthony Ortolona, president of Local 1229, said that almost 400 blooming mill employes voted "unanimously" to return to work after the company agreed to grant a hearing on the suspension of 13 workers who supposedly touched off the walkout last Thursday.

Ortolona said he understood the hearing was to be held tomorrow, but Donald Duvall, vice-president-industrial relations, said no definite date has been set as yet.

Grant Hearing

Under the company-union contract, the company is obliged to grant a hearing on suspensions within five days Ortolona said the union will ask that all 13 men be reinstated immediately.

According to Ortolona, the union will also ask that other matters in the dispute be discussed

The company reported that the walkout started last Thursday when a 13-man crew on a rolling mill quit work in protest to a reassignment of jobs.

On Monday, the crew was suspended by the company for "instigating and participating in a strike which is in violation of the three-year contract the company and union signed last year"

At the same time, Pittsburgh Steel sent letters to other blooming mill employes who joined the walkout notifying them that they were "violating the contract"

Ortolona, who refused to comment on the dispute until today, charged that the company has not bargained in "good faith" on the issue.

Said Ortolona:

"The union does not oppose technological advances which improve the competitive position of the company. We have been discussing with the company for three months on the proposed changes in the blooming mill We asked for a description in advance of new job classifications, to which we are entitled under Section 9-D of our contract The company repeatedly told us they didn't know how the new installations were going to affect the employes. Then last Tuesday, they handed us an ultimatum with no opportunity to file grievances"

'Disappointed'

Ortolona said he was "disappointed" with the company attitude since both union and company has bargained in "good faith on other issues for the past 14 months." He said he hesitated to comment on the dispute previously in order to confine the issue.

"I feel as bad as anyone that

750 Students at Centerville High School on Strike

CENTERVILLE, Pa. (UP) — More than 750 students at Centerville junior and senior high schools went on strike today in demand for a longer lunch hour, new buildings and permission for girls to wear blue jeans.

They formed picket lines and prevented the teachers from entering the schools which are adjacent to each other. Centerville is a community of about 6,000 persons in eastern Washington County.

The strikers joined more than 800 students at Brownsville High School seven miles east of here who refused to return to classes Tuesday after two of their classmates were injured by falling plaster.

The Centerville enrollment is 796, but only about 30 students entered the buildings today The remainder milled about outside and refused the plea of supervising Principal Glean Harshman to return to school.

Harshman suspended classes for the day and called for a faculty meeting.

The Centerville students claim they get only 20 minutes for lunch, that girl students should be allowed to choose their manner of dress and that the present buildings are unsafe

Meanwhile, it appeared that classes would not resume at Brownsville until Monday. Classes were to have been held on Thursday but officials believe it will take about two days for an architect and engineer to check the 50-year-old school building.

Fog Blamed for Three-car Crash This Morning

Foggy conditions were blamed today for a three-car accident on Route 51 near Celapino's Restaurant.

State police said a car operated by Raymond Dugan, 21, R. D. 1, Dunbar, had stopped on the highway to permit a car in front to make a left turn.

Another vehicle, operated by Jino Dinello, 27, of Van Meter, also stopped behind the Dugan car.

However, police said a car operated by Ralph A. Falco, 25, of 302 East Francis St., Connellsville, was unable to stop in time and rammed into the rear of the Dinello car which in turn struck the Dugan car.

Falco and two passengers suffered facial cuts and were treated and released at Connellsville State Hospital. The passengers were identified by police as Ethel Cole, 19, of S. Pittsburgh St., Connellsville; and Marion Fair, 20, of S. Pittsburgh St. Connellsville.

Damage was estimated by police at $650.

Hurricane Carrie Almost Stationary

MIAMI (UP)—Hurricane Carrie, still potent despite weakening to 110 mile an hour winds, wallowed almost stationary today in the Atlantic 1,780 miles east-southeast of Miami while waiting to "make a decision" on whether to swing away from the mainland.

Forecasters at the weather bureau's hurricane central in Miami said the next few hours probably will determine whether the raging storm will hit the U.S. mainland or veer into the North Atlantic.

Arkansas Governor Goes to Bed; Police Crackdown on John Kasper

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus, weary from his bout with the federal government over his refusal to permit school integration here, cancelled all schedules today and went to bed for a rest.

Faubus, under federal injunction subpena for his continued defiance of court orders to remove national guard troops from a school, had been scheduled to appear on a statewide radio hookup this afternoon.

The governor, who has been ordered to a hearing on the injunction matter Sept. 20, had planned to submit to telephoned questions from listeners in an effort to have their guidance about his future course.

A spokesman in his office said Faubus was not ill but had gone to bed for the day to get a much-needed rest.

"He is not sick, but just weary and not feeling well," the spokesman said.

Arnold Sikes, administrative assistant to Faubus, said the governor at first objected to calling off the broadcast but "realized there was nothing new to report and that the situation was stalemated" until the subpena hearing.

All was quiet today at both Central High, where a few National Guardsmen lolled around the area, and at North Little Rock High where there was a tense integration incident earlier in the week

Home front reaction could help him decide whether to give up or to resist an injunction against further use of the guard to keep nine Negroes out of Central High.

Faubus made it clear, however, he will leave at least a token force of troops at the school for the present, regardless of the injunction action taken against him late Tuesday.

His decision to continue his defiance of the federal courts and the U.S. Justice Department came amid these developments on the integration scene:

Nashville — A quick police crackdown on segregation leader John Kasper and Nashville hoodlums gave authorities hope there would be no more violence such as the dynamiting of a school where integration of first-graders began this week.

Birmingham — The Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth, beaten by white men when he tried to take Negro children to a white school, abandoned his integration plans temporarily.

Washington — Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) said he will introduce soon after Congress reconvenes in January a bill barring use of National Guardsmen as "the personal army or storm troop unit of a governor."

Newport — President Eisenhower apparently was sticking to his policy of patience in the handling of the Little Rock dispute.

Little Rock Brings Boos and Hisses

WESTBURY, N.Y. (UP) — The mentioning of Little Rock during the premiere of a summer stock production of the musical "South Pacific" Tuesday night touched off a noisy demonstration by an audience of 1,800 persons.

Boos, hisses and foot-stomping, which lasted nearly three minutes, drowned out the dialogue and music, forcing the cast and orchestra to halt temporarily the production at the Westbury Music Fair.

Little Rock is mentioned in the opening scene.

U. S. Mideast Policy: Speak Soft; Big Stick

Playing for Time, Moderation In Syrian Crisis

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States today placed its military and political strength behind a policy of speaking softly and carrying a big stick in the Middle East.

Officials said this country has important strategic reasons for seeking a cooling-off of the crisis provoked by pro-Soviet forces in Syria. By playing for time and moderation in the Middle East crisis the United States hopes to:

—Keep the situation in Syria flexible by not formally writing Syria off as a Soviet satellite. This would allow Syria, if it chooses, to ease its tightened links with Moscow.

Avoid Pressure Action

—Avoid any action which might put pressure on the United States to intervene in Syria with armed force.

Undercut Soviet propaganda attributing "war plans" against Syria to the United States.

—Assure Israel that the speed-up delivery of previously programmed arms to Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Iraq does not jeopardize Israel's security.

The new American approach to the Syrian crisis is in sharp contrast to tactics followed by the Eisenhower administration only a few days ago.

Alarm Bell Sounds

A series of administration actions and statements sounded the alarm bell. Official statements voiced "deep concern" and outlined the possibility of American intervention under the Eisenhower Doctrine or within the United Nations.

President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Henderson met at the White House last Saturday in extraordinary session. Arms deliveries to Syria's Arab neighbors were accelerated with great fanfare.

The new and more moderate approach may be tied to the faster arms deliveries to Jordan and other Arab countries.

State Lists Names of Insurance Agents

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Property and Supplies Department today disclosed the names of 64 insurance agents who received $82,796 in commissions from state insurance during 1956, and claimed a saving of "at least $200,000" annually in its insurance and bonding program.

The department said that $34,000 in additional commissions have accumulated but have not been distributed. It said the commissions were distributed "on a patronage basis...as has been done traditionally for many years."

Department Secretary Andrew M. Bradley pointed out his agency acts as the Commonwealth's purchaser for all departments of state government. But he said the General State Authority purchases its own insurance through Joseph Danza, its broker of record and sends the bills to his department for payment.

Bradley said "at this time" the department has no record of persons to whom commissions on GSA insurance are paid.

Disclosure of the names of the agents receiving state insurance commissions came on the heels of a challenge by State Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (R-Dauphin) to Gov. George M. Leader to make the list public. Several weeks ago Leader said he hoped to make the GSA listings available.

Bradley said the $200,000 annual savings had been effected through:

—Blanket bonding coverage of employes in the Liquor Control Board, the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission and state departments.

—Improvements in the administration's program of insuring the state's 11,500 motor vehicles.

Cites Cost Cuts

He said the costs for bonding and insurance, which averaged between 25 and 35 per cent for the many state employes, have now been cut to where they average between 10 and 15 per cent.

He also said that since the Leader administration took over the number of state workers bonded has increased from 30,000 to more than 40,000.

"In 1954, the Commonwealth paid $53,768 for this limited insurance," he said. "Since 1956 we have been getting greater protection and covering more people for $13,911 a year. That represents a 74 per cent reduction."

Bradley said the cost of bonding liquor store employes for $10,000 each has been reduced from $22,440 annually to $3,311 in 1957.

Following is a partial list of the brokers and agents who received commissions on state insurance business last year:

Allegheny County — Hugh T. Heath, John A. Manzione, Michael J. Herda, Morry Hoffman, T. E. Clinton Co., Arthur F. Mahoney, Edward M. Skapik, each $1,500; Paul J. Trimbur, Inc., $1,500; Meyer Gerber, $1,000; Joseph D. Guernsey, $444; Patrick J. Coyne, $3,000.

Westmoreland County — Charles Doberneck, Robert A. Kilgore, William S. Tenzer, each $500; Katherine O. Mahady, $351.

Washington County — Raymond Curley and John Beck, each $1,000.

this thing had to come to this," said the Local 1229 president.

"We are trying as hard as the company to keep the mill running efficiently and because of our seniority plan it is important that we know in advance of new job descriptions."

Last night's meeting at the CIO building was reported to be lengthy and lively. Ortolona said that only "about 25" of the employes involved in the walkout were absent.

Duvall said today that the company had no further statement on the dispute.

A company spokesman added that "Pittsburgh Steel has no intention of getting into a debate with Mr. Ortolona." He said the alleged grievances over job descriptions were involved and could not be settled "in a newspaper story."

About 320 blooming mill employes were actually involved in the walkout, according to the company. Eighty other workers were furloughed in the open hearth department as a result of the dispute, bringing the total of those idled to 420.

During the five day strike, there was no picketing at the plant which employs approximately 5,000.

"Because this undertaking, once completed, will be useful to all citizens alike, and also because it will serve generations to come I see no reason why City Council cannot lend its full support to assure Monessen a new, modern, convenient, and adequate public library," the Mayor said.

Board of Trustees

"I should like to go a step further," Parente's statement concluded, "and urge that it (Council, even assist in promoting the necessary and desirable interest among the voters in order to stimulate a serious concern in this very essential community need."

Under the third class city code, the public library would be operated by a board of trustees appointed by the Council and serving without compensation. Operating funds would be appropriated annually out of regular City revenues.

Mayor Parente indicated that the financial details are being worked out and will be made public well in advance of the bond issue vote.

The City's bonded indebtedness at the present time is approximately $480,000 whereas the legal limit is nearly two and a half million dollars.

Plans for the new building are already well underway under the auspices of the Library Association. The architect is J. Russell Bailey, of Orange, Va., a specialist in library architecture. Associated with Bailey is H. Ernest Clark, registered architect, of Monessen.

Guided by Study

The Library Association has spent over two years developing the expansion program. It has been guided by a detailed study made in 1955 by Joseph L. Wheeler, of Benson, Vt., a recognized authority in the development of public libraries.

Mayor Parente indicated today that the City probably will follow the Library Association's plans closely in carrying on the project if the bond issue is approved.

The present library was established in 1936, and although it has had a steady growth, Wheeler's report indicated that its facilities and services are grossly inadequate for a city of Monessen's size.

The library is now supported by both public funds and private contributions. Towards the current budget of about $12,000, the City this year is contributing $4,000 and the School District, $1,500. The Community Fund is the principal source of the private gifts.

Mysterious Post

CHICAGO (UP)—A lamp post sitting smack in the middle of railroad tracks that lead nowhere caused quite a bit of mystery. Railroad officials finally explained that the lamp post would be removed and the tracks connected to another line before trains start running.

Democrats Fall Short

HARRISBURG (UP)—Commonwealth Secretary James A. Finnegan said today Pennsylvania Democrats have made "considerable gains" in registration but would fall short of their 175,000 new voter goal.

Finnegan, Democratic registration chairman, said the response of unregistered voters was "disappointing...The volume of registration for both parties is down this year.

On the brighter side, Finnegan claimed the Democrats did "much better" at the registration booths than was done in previous years. He said in Republican dominated counties, the eligible voter gap had been narrowed from four Republicans to each Democrat to a 2-1 figure. In Democratic controlled counties, Finnegan said the party upped its voter advantage from 3-1 to 8-1. And in the counties where party strength was about even, he said Democrats had 7-5 and 2-1 leads.

Party leaders had set a 175,000 registration goal to bolster Democratic chances in the county and municipal elections Nov. 5. The registration ends next Monday with the Democrats apparently far short of their goal. Finnegan said it was "impossible" to tell how many new Democrats were on the books until at least Sept. 23 or 24.

Fall Steel Production Is Off to Slow Start

NEW YORK (UP) — The fall pickup in steel production is off to a disappointingly slow start but production for 1957 still may be the second best in history, Iron Age said today.

The authoritative trade magazine said the steel industry may produce 116 million tons this year, which would be 1 million tons greater than last year but 1 million tons short of the record set in 1955.

Iron Age said while mills generally concede that business has improved over the last several weeks, they had expected an even stronger market by this time. Some mills are "becoming edgy."

Iron Age noted that auto makers appear to be holding off their commitments for big steel tonnages until they get some idea of how the public likes the new 1958 models.

Despite the "casual attitude of Detroit," it added, there are signs the vital sheet and strip market "could break upward in a hurry."

The publication said delivery promises for sheet and strip are lengthening in Chicago.

The magazine said the pessimistic views of some steel mills may be "overdrawn." It pointed out that some firms this week are booking new orders at a faster rate than they are shipping finished steel—"the first trend of this kind in steel in many weeks.

On the subject of the auto industry, Iron Age reiterated its position that next year's labor negotiations are bound to have an effect on Detroit's thinking.

"For this reason," it said, "the automakers are expected to lay in steel later this year and early next year as a hedge against possible labor trouble."

Parking Plaza Revenue Check

Authority Thinks Stricter Enforcement Is Necessary

The Monessen Parking Authority last night decided to make spot checks of the two downtown parking plazas to determine if all the revenue possible is "being realized from them."

Dr. Clyde W. Meadows

Although expressing satisfaction with the current operations of the two plazas, the Authority said it believes additional revenue is possible through stricter enforcement of regulations.

Chairman Harold B. Cramer said he believes "more revenue can be obtained if we can take stricter steps to stop these motorists who park minutes overtime just to see if they can get away with it."

He said the police are doing a 'good job" policing the plazas now, "but we will have to keep a sharper lookout for the motorists who think they can get away with parking overtime."

Revenue Climbing

Cramer reported that revenue from the plazas is climbing. In May $535.36 was collected; June, $793.01; July, $1,122.35, and August, $909.10. He said the high figure for July includes monthly rentals for June and July.

"It certainly looks as though the lots are beginning to pay. In fact, I think we'll reach our anticipated monthly revenue before we thought," Cramer said.

When the plazas went into operation late last year, it was predicted that it would take at least two years before the anticipated monthly revenue would be realized.

During June, July and August, 5,629 tokens donated by merchants to shoppers were used in the two lots, the chairman said. Some 25,000 tokens are in circulation. They are valued at five cents each.

"We can't get the benefit of these if the motorists don't use them. A good many of the tokens are probably home in a drawer and forgotten. Motorists should do their utmost to use them."

The Authority said the one-side parking on the north side of Donner Ave. from Fourth to Sixth streets, which is on a 90-day trial basis, "is working out very well. However, it is too early to tell what effect it is having as far as adding more revenue in the plazas is concerned."

Traffic Improved

Cramer said he believes the one-side parking, started last month, has improved the flow of traffic on Donner Ave. He said, however, that there have been complaints from merchants on the north side that the new regulations are "cutting down sidewalk traffic on their side by some 50 per cent."

He added that these regulations are "new and it will take a little while for people to get used to them."

Cramer himself has a store on the north side of Donner Ave.

The Authority held up payment for the paving of the Third St. lot until approval from City Council. It also held up payment of a bill to the Hale Electric Co., of Pittsburgh, until the present timed light system is checked to see if it meets all specifications.

County Planners to Mail Out Regulations

A copy of proposed sub-division regulations for Westmoreland County Planning Commission, said the regulations will be sent this week to attorneys, government officials, local planning commission members and representatives of the building profession.

The county planners have asked that the copies be returned with comments and suggestions. These comments will be considered before a final draft is adopted.

At a meeting of the planning group this week, a great deal of time was spent discussing the possibility of an up-to-date map for the county.

The planners agreed to discuss the map with the County Commissioners. It was also suggested that a formal proposal on the issue be made at the next meeting.

In the absence of Avra N. Pershing, Jr., chairman, the meeting was conducted by Vice Chairman Clark Queer. Members in attendance were Albert Chenet, Paul Euwer, C. W. Cline, Ben Herbrank, Queer and DeLotto

The next regular session will be held on the second Monday in October. The public is invited to attend all sessions of the Commission.

Fire Evacuation Drill Planned at C-M Hospital

A simulated evacuation drill will be held at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital on Tuesday, Oct. 8, in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week.

North Charleroi Fire Chief Joseph Huscroft is in charge of preparations for the drill. He has been promised the full cooperation of Russell M. Stone, administrator at the hospital.

A similar drill was held in May of 1956. Eight fire companies took part, employing 32 pieces of equipment and 245 men.

The participating departments included North Charleroi, Monessen, Charleroi, Donora, Monongahela, North Belle Vernon, Belle Vernon No. 2 and Carroll Twp. Standing by at North Belle Vernon were the Washington Twp. firemen.

Huscroft said that additional details of the drill will be announced at a later date.

Rotary Members Told of Local Library Facilities

Vivian Drake, librarian at Monessen Public Library, pointed out that the local library has reading material of special appeal to men as well as providing books for women and children, when she spoke to the Rotary Club yesterday at Johnson's restaurant.

Miss Drake read the titles of a number of volumes that have been available for some time and also of several new books recently added She discussed the needs met by the local library, but stressed that considerable work is necessary to raise it to the standard of a library that should service this size community.

William H. Pore, president, was in charge of the noon hour business session. The resignation of Francis Miller was accepted. Formerly manager of the local G. C. Murphy store, Miller has gone to Brownsville in a simular capacity.

Plan Construction on Keystone Shortway To Begin Next Year

HARRISBURG (UP) — Initial construction on the 300 million dollar Keystone Shortway may begin next year or in 1959.

Location surveys along the 291 mile route across north - central Pennsylvania from Stroudsburg to Sharon have already started. Two consulting engineering firms are surveying about 160 miles of the planned limited access road with the state Highways Department expected to complete the balance.

Michael Baker Jr. Inc., Rochester, Pa., is surveying generally the best route from Tannersville, Monroe County, to Whitedeer, on the west bank of the Susquehanna River.

A similar study is underway in the western section from Sharon to Brookville, Jefferson County, by the Buchart Engineering Corp., York. The two engineering firms have about 80 miles each under survey. The portion of the highway between Brookville and Whitedeer will be handled by the department.

Richard J. Harris, assistant chief highway engineer in charge of design in the department's plans section, told the United Press today the consulting engineers were tentatively scheduled to submit their surveys by next January.

Harrris said it was "plausible" that certain sections of the interstate highway could receive construction go-aheads in "badly congested" areas of the state. He indicated the gigantic scope of the undertaking, along with its huge cost would force the department to build the road piecemeal during the next 12 to 15 years.

State Cost $30,000,000

Approval of the superhighway under the federal interstate system qualified the route to receive 90 per cent government subsidation. The state will pay about 30 million dollars of its cost with the federal government taking care of the 270 million dollar balance.

However, Harris pointed out numerous outside factors influence the start and completion of large scale highway projects. For one thing, the department has committed about 200 million dollars to construction this year alone. Also other projects are pressing, including the proposed Mid-County Expressway in Delaware County and the Pennsylvania link of the Erie Throughway.

With a target date for opening set roughly at 1972, the shortway will require about two years for completion of a specific route, three to five years for exact locations and five to 10 years for design. However, all three preliminary phases will run concurrently with construction.

Generally, the superhighway has already cost about $400,000 for preliminary studies, particularly surveys to determine the route was superior to existing Route 6. The location surveys are expected to cost approximately $200,000, with the state and federal government sharing equally.

Actual design cost is set at 12 million dollars with the state's share totaling about two million. Added to the pyramid of cost is the 300 million for construction.

The shortway is still a highly controversial issue despite U.S Bureau of Public Roads endorsement. Northern tier counties are extremely critical of the route, and numerous Republican leaders have charged it will "bankrupt" the Pennsylvania Turnpike and Philadelphia's port.

Bloom Claiming Big Upswing in GOP Sentiment

WARREN, Pa. (UP)—Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom said today a two day conference of party leaders here brought reports of "a tremendous upsweep in Republican sentiment" throughout Pennsylvania.

The conference Monday and Tuesday between state GOP leaders and party chiefs of 12 northwestern counties was aimed at coordinating campaign efforts in the 1957-58 elections.

"We know there must be the closest cooperation from the smallest precinct right up to the top if the Republican Party is to accomplish what the people expect of it," Bloom said.

At the same time, Bloom said the conference revealed a trend which he predicted will win "important gains" for the GOP in this year's local election in November, and return control of the state administration to the GOP next year.

"The failures and broken promises of the Leader Democrat administration in Harrisburg have aroused widespread public resentment," Bloom said.

Dues Protest Group To Open Conference

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Dues Protest Committee, an anti-administration group within the United Steelworkers, will open a two-day national conference here Friday.

Keynoter of the meeting will be Nicholas Mamula, Rochester, Pa., national campaign chairman of the committee.

The DPC was formed after the international convention of the USW boosted dues from $3 to $5 a month in 1956. In last February's union elections, the faction backed Donald C. Rarick, McKeesport, against USW President David J. McDonald.

A Crucial Situation

THE INCIDENT at Little Rock is shaping up as one of the crucial situations in the painful controversy over segregation.

Governor Faubus of Arkansas, whether by design or accident, has presented the issue in such a way that the outcome at Little Rock might very well determine whether integration is to be accomplished peacefully and within a reasonable time or whether the solution is to be delayed indefinitely and to be bought at heavy cost.

It is probably because he recognizes the crucial nature of this situation that President Eisenhower is proceeding with what seems to be deliberate caution. He left no doubt, in his telegram to Governor Faubus, that he means to uphold the Constitution by "every means available to me." And the President's actions thus far suggest that he feels the best means lie in firm support of Judge Davies.

But Mr. Eisenhower is being well advised to be patient while the processes of law take their course. He is right in feeling that the strength of the federal position lies largely in its legal correctness whereas the weakness of Governor Faubus' position lies in the patent illegality of his use of the National Guard to prevent Negro children from going to school.

We believe President Eisenhower can be counted upon to act with sober judgment in this matter. One of the reasons the American people have such great confidence in him is that he does not panic easily.

But Governor Faubus does not know very much about Dwight Eisenhower if he thinks the President was born in the woods to be scared by screech owls. Having made his mistake, the Governor can only make it worse by attempting to bull it through.

One can sense, in this critical interval, that public opinion over the country is ranging itself behind the President. Even in the South there is among sensible people a rising awareness that law and justice are on the side of the federal government.

This support will make the right outcome more certain.

A Notable Career

HENRY A. Roemer, who is retiring as president of Sharon Steel Corp. and tapering off a long and eventful career in the steel business, is well remembered in Monessen.

For a period of about six years beginning in 1936, Mr. Roemer was the president of Pittsburgh Steel Co. as well as of Sharon Steel. He was a frequent visitor to Monessen and became intimately acquainted with the city.

It was during this period that negotiations were conducted looking towards a merger of Pittsburgh Steel and Sharon Steel. And it was when these negotiations broke down that Mr. Roemer withdrew from Pittsburgh Steel and afterwards devoted all of his time to the affairs of Sharon Steel.

Mr. Roemer has been one of the leading citizens of the City of Sharon, devoting much of his time and influence, which is considerable, to community affairs. Few civic enterprises in the Sharon area have not had the benefit of his personal efforts.

We have had the feeling that there has been a cause-and-effect relationship between the consistent success of Sharon Steel Corp. and the civic-mindedness of its management.

But of course Henry Roemer has no copyright on this. Nor is the concept original with him.

However, he stands as a prime example of that group of top leaders in industry who view their fields of service in the broad terms of citizenship. And it is more than a coincidence, we believe, that most of the great personal successes in the business world are achieved by men in this group.

Can't Stop Now

THE LAW enforcement authorities of Washington County appear to have quite a knotty problem as a result of the acquittal, ordered by the court, of Mrs. Lena Trappin of the murder of Joseph Mancuso, of Monongahela.

The case against Mrs. Trappin, a neighbor of the murdered man, was entirely circumstantial, and the presiding judge, George T. Cummins, considered it too thin to permit the jury to "guess" as to the accused's guilt.

Yet Judge Cummins is of the opinion that Mrs. Trappin "knows something about this slaying", which she is not telling.

The public interest requires, of course, that efforts to solve this murder be continued. Mancuso is dead, and it is the plain duty of the Washington County district attorney to find the person or persons responsible.

On the face of things, and considering Judge Cummins' observation concerning Mrs. Trappin, it would appear that the district attorney's office either should not have brought her to trial at all or should have developed a stronger case.

However that may be and even though the murdered man was an obscure cobbler, the search for his killer should be just as intense as if he had been the leading citizen of Monongahela. As matters now stand, somebody got away with murder, and that is an intolerable state of affairs.

Merry-Go-Round—

Says Blind Can Learn To 'See' Well

(Editor's Note: While Drew Pearson is touring the Mediterranean, his column is written by his junior partner.)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Government psychiatrists are literally gasping over an astounding demonstration presented the other day by a railroad worker who claims he can teach the blind to see.

He is William Foos of Ellerson, Va., who tried out his teaching method on his teen-age daughter, Margaret. Wearing a "foolproof" blindfold, she baffled 25 top Veterans Administration experts by reading the Bible, tracing Jagged lines, playing checkers and identifying random objects.

The three-hour demonstration was conducted by the VA's chief of psychiatry, Dr. J. F. Casey, under clinical conditions. His staff designed what he announced was an impenetrable blindfold. He selected a room at VA headquarters which the girl had never seen. Then the staff gave her both prearranged and impromptu tests.

She received no signals from her father, who wandered around chatting with the doctors and even left the room occasionally. Yet without exception, Margaret responded like a girl with normal vision.

The demonstration was closed to the press, except for a representative of this column who was smuggled in. What this column witnessed was either modern miracle or the greatest trick since Houdini.

Hidden Brain Cells?

The doctors came away shaking their heads. One psychiatrist, turning to this column's representative, mused out loud: "It's conceivable some new portion of the brain may have been discovered."

The next day, however, Dr. Casey called a two-hour post mortem. He made it clear they would become a laughing stock if they admitted the girl could actually see without eyes. They agreed she received no signals, so they concluded their own "foolproof" blindfold must have failed.

Later Foos complained to this column that his daughter had demonstrated before doctors, magicians and debunkers. But like the VA psychiatrists, he said, they were unwilling to believe her demonstration yet unable to explain it.

The 38-year-old railroad foreman has been interested in extrasensory perception, the science of mental telepathy, for several years. He started experimenting with neighborhood children as they played blind man's bluff. He claims several youngsters in Ellerson, Va., have picked up the rudiments of seeing through darkened eyes.

For example, he taught his daughter's girl friend, Jo Anne Ostergren, who accompanied them to Washington. To demonstrate, Jo Anne tied on a standard blindfold and read easily from a magazine this column's representative handed her.

No Explanation

Asked to explain his teaching method, Foos shrugged.

"I don't clearly understand the learning process myself, "he said. "I know how but now why."

He suggested it might have something to do with the utilization of electromagnetic forces surrounding the body. He hoped scientists would study his method and find the explanation, he said.

Foos' ambition is to use his "discovery" to benefit the blind. He's willing to teach blind people, he said, if he can find a research group that will take him seriously.

Meanwhile his story may be more appropriate material for believe-it-or-not.

NOTE: Unable to attract scientific interest, Foos will try to stir up interest by staging public exhibitions. His daughter will present a demonstration at the Virginia State Horseshow in Richmond this week end, he said. She would let the judges blindfold her, then she would ride a horse among balloons scattered at random. She would break the balloons, he said, as viewers identified them by colors.

Society Secrets

Society Queen Gwen Cafritz, who has taken over as Washington's hostess with the mostes' since Perle Mesta tapered off, gave away her secret for successful entertaining the other day.

She confided to friends that she builds her parties around "one attractive couple," then starts adding other couples "who blend in."

"If you have enough pretty women and clever men at your party," she said, "then you can afford to invite a homely cabinet officer and his wife."

A hostess "simply must" know who's who," added Mrs. Cafritz, who obviously does.

"The European diplomats are more chic than the South American corps, except for Peru and Brazil. Peru is very smart right now," she said.

As for domestic clebrities, she shrugged: "I always invite senators to my parties, but I seldom play around with the lower house."

Non-filibusterers in Trouble

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Of all the possible consequences which may flow from the new right-to-vote law, one of the most grimly ironic would be for the 16 senators from the deep South to be driven from office by irate voters because they refused to go along with Sen. Strom Thurmond's futile filibuster.

Mr. Drummond

Is it not fantastic to ask: Will the non-filibusterers be purged at the polls?

This is a deadly serious political anxiety which such earnest, implacable, fatal opponents of civil rights legislation as Sens. Richard Russell, Herman Talmadge and others now are facing.

Right now the widely acclaimed political hero of most of the South is not the man whose determination and skill and force persuaded the Senate to cut about three-quarters of the substance out of the bill.

No, the widely acclaimed hero is not Senator Russell, the leader of the "Southern Sixteen" who talked when it counted and won votes by his talking, but Senator Thurmond, who talked longer than anyone else after the fight was all over.

Others Criticized

Today you can read in the papers where such life-long enemies of federal civil-rights legislation as Senator Eastland of Mississippi and Senator Talmadge are being criticized as being "soft on civil rights" because they didn't filibuster.

You might think that Senator Thurmond would be criticized for spurning the unanimous judgment of his 16 colleagues that to filibuster a bill, which had already passed the Senate once and could be passed again at any time, would be reckless and riskful and would hurt, not help, their cause.

But the present manifestations are the other way. One Southern headline shouts: "South's Senators Desert Thurmond," and another reads: "South's Senators Fail to Aid Thurmond in His Filibuster."

The fact is that in the closing hours of the Senate debate, after Senator Thurmond had held the floor for 24 hours and 18 minutes, Senator Russell felt it necessary to make one of the most impassioned speeches of his long career in defense of his "failure" to filibuster.

Russell Answers

He addressed himself long and earnestly to "the criticisms leveled at Southern senators for not undertaking to filibuster."

"There was not a man among us," he went on, "who was not willing to speak against this iniquitous bill until he dropped in his tracks." And then he put it even stronger:

"If my position is misunderstood or twisted for political purposes, I would consider the loss of my seat in the Senate as a cheap price to pay for the conviction in my heart, mind and soul that God was kind enough to vouchsafe to me and those associated with me, the strength and the understanding to follow the wisest course in meeting the great threat posed by the legislation."

It was a matter of minutes after Senator Thurmond's performance that Senator Talmadge took the floor to defend his refusal to filibuster. He was less measured in his words, but he made his point — that he knew full well that "a grandstand of long-winded speeches would be immediately popular with our constituents" and he left no doubt that he thought Senator Thurmond was selfishly sacrificing the true interests of the South for personal political advantage."

Couldn't Win

What Senators Russell and Talmadge and others of the "Sixteen" deeply believed — and my information is that they were completely right — was this:

That an organized, sustained filibuster was not open to the Southern senators since there were 64 votes ready to apply cloture.

That a filibuster would have almost inevitably invited, then and there, a change in the rule making it easier to end debate — which the Southerners don't want.

That the Senate by at least a three-to-one majority preferred a stronger civil rights bill and that if the Southerners had filibustered the weaker bill, it would have voted a stronger one.

That, with the issue certain to come up again, perhaps next year, the Southern senators cannot afford to destroy goodwill among independent senators. They'll need it.

These 16 Southern senators don't hate filibusters. They just hate useless filibusters that can only do them harm.

Soviet Blast Is Help To Adenauer Campaign

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Soviet Russia probably has made it certain that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will win easily in next Sunday's West German national election.

The tough old chancellor has been gaining strength in recent months. Political experts have been predicting that Adenauer would win. The chief question was whether his Christian Democratic Party would win a majority of the 497 seats in the Bundestag, the controlling house of the West German Parliament.

Mr. McCann

Now the Soviet government has sent Adenauer a 2,000-word note savagely attacking his policies on German reunification, disarmament and alliance with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Soviet note was intended, of course, to hurt Adenauer and help his Social Democratic Party opponents.

But it looks as if the Russian blast may assure Adenauer a majority. It may possibly assure him a big one.

Note Nothing New

The Soviet note accused Adenauer of leading Germany along a dangerous path. It restated the Russian refusal to let West and East Germans hold a free election to decide their future. It repeated the Kremlin's demand that the 51,300,000 free, prosperous West Germans negotiate with the 16,800,000 restive East Germans whom Russian military force is keeping subject to a satellite Communist government.

There was really nothing new in the note. But it served as a reminder to German voters that Russia alone is keeping their country divided.

Adenauer denounced the Russian note in a speech as an election maneuver intended to help the Socialists.

Socialist leader Eric Ollenhauer called the note a rebuff to Adenauer's persistence in a "policy of strength" by which he hoped to force Russia to agree to reunification.

Most West Germans seem to feel that Adenauer's policy is the right one.

They appear to be convinced that they would have nothing to gain by giving up West Germany's alliance with the United States and the other NATO powers in the hope that Russia would voluntarily loosen its grip on East Germany.

Big Majority Seen

Undoubtedly the West Germans share the belief of Western leaders that Russia's grip on its Communist satellites is inevitably slipping, however gradually, and that some day the East European Red bloc will fall to pieces.

The latest predictions from West Germany are that Adenauer may carry nine of the ten West German states, leaving the Socialists a possible majority only in Hesse.

Adenauer's Christian Democrats held 253 of the 497 seats in the outgoing Parliament. He had the support of the 32 German Party-Free People's Party bloc. The Socialists had 153 seats.

Several months ago the Adenauer coalition lost the support of the Free Democratic Party, which held 37 seats. Adenauer is trying to win them back. He seems to have a good chance of doing so. If he does, the chief question in the election probably will be the size of Adenauer's majority.

National Affairs—

Wisconsin Negroes in Democratic Column

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democrats should be pleased by returns from a spot check of the first test of political sentiment among Negroes since the congressional debate on the right-to-vote bill.

Republicans should be correspondingly disappointed.

Mr. Wilson

President Eisenhower signed the vote bill Monday. It was a much diluted version of an overall civil rights bill originally sponsored by the administration and substantially rejected by Congress.

The test of Negro political judgment took place in last month's Wisconsin senatorial election. William Proxmire defeated former Gov. Walter J. Kohler by a lopsided score in a light vote. Kohler ran as a 100 per cent Ikeman. The election was held two days before the final congressional vote on civil rights, but long after the administration's position had been demonstrated.

Milwaukee's 2nd and 6th wards are Negro areas. Adlai E. Stevenson won 64 per cent of the 2nd and 6th vote in 1952. Proxmire got 76 per cent in 1956 against Republican Vernon W. Thomson, the state-wide winner for governor.

Could Decide Issue

Opposing Kohler last month for the Senate, Proxmire took 79 per cent of the 2nd and 6th ward Negro vote. Proxmire won state-wide by 122,000 votes. He did not need the Negro vote to win. The political fact, however, is that Milwaukee Negroes voted for him almost en bloc.

Cast en bloc, the Negro vote could be the balance of power in any moderately close contest in any industrial state such as, for example, New York, Pennsylvania Ohio and Illinois.

Failure of Wisconsin's Negro voters to react favorably to the Republican record on civil rights is, therefore, a political factor of considerable importance. Especially if it proves to reflect the political attitudes of Negroes in other states.

This importance extends to the southern states. Eisenhower's signature on the bob-tailed 1957 civil rights bill committed and empowered the Republican administration to assure the vote to southern Negroes who desire it. To be disclosed by events is where and how southern Negroes will confide their newly-guaranteed franchise.

A Delicate Position

They may infiltrate the southern Democratic Party in an effort to defeat local and national officials who offend them. They may become the core of an opposition party in the South perhaps as Republicans.

The Arkansas ruckus over school integration, now spreading somewhat through the South, offers the Eisenhower administration new opportunities to win Negro affection on both sides of the Mason-Dixon Line.

Negro voters would be expected to turn toward the Republican Party if Eisenhower and Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. deal effectively and promptly with opposition to integration at the state executive level.

If aggressive opposition spreads from Arkansas and develops generally into a direct challenge to the authority of federal courts, then, so much the greater will be the administration's opportunity to make some political hay among Negroes everywhere.

It is a delicate position for the President.

ON THE BALL

By CLAIR BROWN

Crystal - ball Time Nearing

It's just about time to dust off the old crystal ball and begin taking a try at picking the football winners in the district grid games. Before that, however, comes a brief pre-season forecast on how the Big Five Conference shapes up for 1957 . . . From all indications Donora is perhaps the team to beat in the conference this year but this corner sees a rugged battle coming as usual from Charleroi's Cougars . . . Monongahela looks to be the most improved team in the conference with Brownsville and Monessen the question - mark elevens . . . Both were hard hit by graduation and the replacements have to prove themselves.

* * *

Just as the Washington County Soccer League, the loop in which district entries compete, thought its 1957 slate was set a new shift developed. Roscoe, which originally hadn't committed itself to competing this season, decided to join the circuit but Hazel Kirk, a new entry, dropped out before it actually ever got started . . . Dunlevy will field a team again, as usual, and will be piloted for the first time by an all-time Redbird ace, familiar to many local soccer fans, (Crackers) Harrison . . . The league roster is still open . . . Van Voorhis, Dunlevy, Monongahela, Avella and Keystone Shaft are other entries set for this season.

Final Mon Valley Loop Meeting

The final Mon Valley Baseball League meeting of the 1957 season will be held at Bud Roman's Monessen Sports Shop here tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock . . . Final business matters will be discussed and trophies awarded Charleroi and Fayette City, season champions and pennant winners respectively . . . Nearly 50 district high school football coaches, grid officials and sports writers attended the annual preseason grid clinic of The Mon Valley Football Officials Association Sunday at Charleroi . . . Jim Clutter, Jim Leeper, Fred Furnari, George Kuvinka and Tom Barbero explained the rules to those present emphasizing the few changes this season.

Now that the Pirates are playing improved ball you may want to see them in action but you only have three more chances, Friday, September 20, Saturday, Sept. 21, Sunday, September 22 against the Giants . . . That latter date will be "Surprise Day" when practically anything you can think of will be given away to the fans present . . . Steve Garban, All-Big Six center from Brownsville High a couple of years back, is one of the leading candidates for the Penn State first-string pivot post this season . . . While on the subject of Brownsville, here's another BHS item concerning John Fritsch, quarterback on the University of Maryland team this season. He is a nephew of Warner Fritsch, former Brownsville High mentor, now an assistant at Baldwin.

Seventy CJHS Grid Candidates

One of the largest turnouts in Charleroi Junior High history, 70 candidates, reported to Coach George Chacko this week as Chacko started his 11th season with an 18-straight game non-losing streak going for him, extending from the 1953 season . . . A 6-6 tie with Monessen in 1955 is the only blemish on the Little Cougar record the past four seasons . . . A former Charleroi standout, Maury Guttman, was injured in the first full-scale scrimmage staged by the Miami U. Hurricanes but X-rays showed only a sprained shoulder . . . He had completed two of five passes for 25 yards (one for paydirt) before he "got it." . . . Guttman's the No. 2 quarterback behind heralded Bonnie Yarbrough.

Today's Sports Parade—

Admitted 'Hacker' in U. S. 'Am' Third Round

By OSCAR FRALEY

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UP) — Frank Bostock, an admitted "hacker" who reached the third round of the U.S. Amateur golf championship by knocking off former champion Ted Bishop, is a lesson in determination.

Less than four years ago, this rugged little man from Phoenix, Ariz., listened doubtfully as several friends discussed the devilish intricacies and frightful hopelessness of the game of golf. Finally, although he had never handled a club, he had heard enough.

"I'll bet," he said in his quiet voice, "that I can break 80 within six months."

A Sizeable Bet

A "quite sizeable" bet was offered and accepted. Well within the six-month deadline, the five-foot, five-inch Bostock fired a 77 to pick up the chips.

Last June, after cutting out a 67 on the par 71 Arizona Country Club course, he decided to break the marathon low average record. So the blue-eyed Bostock played from 4:35 a.m. until 5 p.m., averaged 74 for 144 holes, used only nine balls on his 32 - mile trek, sometimes ran between shots to average each round in one hour and 30 minutes, wore out five caddies—and quit "because one of my feet was getting a bit tender."

Only 142 pounds, Bostock actually is an athletic marvel. In high school he set an Arizona state record by running the 440 in 50 seconds flat. He was No. 1 in tennis his freshman year at Arizona State (Tempe), a halfback on the football team, college lightweight boxing champ, track star and state low board AAU diving champion.

Eyes Semi-Pro Football

Not only that, but this year, at 35, he's been working out to play with the Phoenix Suns, a newly-organized semi-pro football team.

In between his golf and football, Bostock runs a dude ranch at Scottsdale, Ariz., and has bought up a ghost town at Silverton, Colo., which he is in the process of restoring for the tourist trade and as a movie location site.

"Each trip between those two places takes about 10 hours and one speeding ticket," he grins.

But chunky Frank doesn't consider his golf a grinning matter.

"Actually, it's an honor to be playing with these fellows," he explained seriously. "I'm not that good, being only the second alternate from my district. I'm really a hacker or, to make it sound better, a mere duffer."

Yet, his determination can't help shining through.

Championship Race Set for Heidelberg

Herb Scott will be back at Heidelberg Raceway tomorrow night to try to win the 50-lap season championship race and also pick up the "one that got away" last week.

Herb heads the field of the 50-lap title run which is the last of the series on the Pittsburgh Racing Assn. circuit. Bob Lucci won the first title "50" at Claridge; Joe Mihalic won at Washington and won the third big 50-lapper at South Park Saturday night.

All of which makes Scott feel that it's his turn this Thursday night. He's currently leading the point standings and a win in the Heidelberg "50" would all but sew up the PRA title which he won last season.

With double points riding on the 50-lapper as well as the preliminary races, every driver will be going all out to climb in the PRA point standings.

As for the "one that got away last week," it's the 25-lap feature held over from last week's program which was halted after only nine laps when Lee Stover crashed into a light tower and sent it sprawling across the track. This race will be run off first on the program.

Scott had just passed Dick Linder in that event and appeared enroute to the victory which would have broken the jinx which has kept him winless in feature events at Heidelberg this season.

But this is another week — and another chance.

Final Meeting of Softball Umpires

The final meeting of the Monessen Softball Umpires Association will be held tonight at Club 20, beginning at 7:30 p. m. at which all the 1957 business matters will be concluded for this season.

The Association worked in over 430 softball games this past year, handling the local softball league, and the Allenport Plant Employes Recreation League. Both leagues were very cooperative throughout the entire successful season.

The association worked both leagues with only a staff of eleven members, and all did yeoman work. All members are urged to attend tonight's meeting for it is very important.

'Hounds Get Defense Posts; Flu Hits Allen

Defensive assignments were the subject of last night's drills for the Monessen High School gridders as their '57 opener with Windber draws near. (Saturday night.)

Coach Armand Niccolai nominated Steve Burns, Paul Tobacco and George Guibourdanche, all ends, as starters on defense Switching of defenses which eliminate several offensive positions like center, permit the use of three ends.

Vince Pascarella and James Aldrich were given the defensive tackle assignments with Bob Pauline and Terry Throop or possibly Ron Karbowsky at the guards.

Carl Payne, who shares the offensive quarterback duties with Dan Barton, will be a defensive halfback with Ken Bronson with Ron Karbowsky, halfback, and Carl Kaltay, fullback, also possibly working on defense.

A bit of bad news came Niccolai's way yesterday when he learned Ed Allen, 260-pound tackle, was bedded down with the flu. Allen had been showing great promise.

On the brighter side "Nick" said Lou Gigliotti had been impressing line coach Andy Kuzemka with his center play, pressing first-stringer Tom Churan, and Dan Blythe, 130-pound guard had been showing well as had Ken Walters, a transfer end from Hubbard, Ohio, who can "really grab a pass" as the 'Hound mentor puts it.

"We'll have one more really rugged drill and then taper off for the opener," Niccolai added.

Windber Game Ducats on Sale

Tickets for the Windber-Monessen game will be on sale at the high school tonight from 7 o'clock until 9 o'clock, MHS director Everett Pancook announced today. Pancook said they would remain on sale each night at the same time until Saturday. The ducats will be sold at the Greyhound gym office.

Pitt Hoping for Opener 'Breaks'

PITTSBURGH (UP)—University of Pittsburgh football coach John Michelosen hinted today that his team would be looking for "breaks" for a victory in their season opener against national champion Oklahoma Sept. 21.

"It's a matter of record that the Sooners usually fumble more in their opener than in other games because they aren't perfect yet with their dangerous pitchouts," Michelosen told newsmen.

"We are certainly hoping that they drop a few in their lidlifter this year."

The Pitt athletic office disclosed that the Oklahoma game is a sell-out with all available 59,000 seats at Pitt Stadium sold.

Rockefeller Offers To Help Keep Bums in Brooklyn

NEW YORK (UP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller pledged today he will do "all in my power" to keep the Brooklyn Dodgers in New York but warned he is bucking "a mighty attractive offer by Los Angeles."

Even as other financial bidders began throwing in the towel at his entrance into the Dodger picture, Rockefeller told the United Press he wished he "had made more progress toward keeping the Dodgers in New York" since his initial conferences with Brooklyn owner Walter O'Malley last month.

"I'm going to keep trying, though," said the 49 - year - old grandson of John D. Rockefeller Sr., who was one of America's three known billionaires.

Although Rockefeller would not venture to say what his chances were of influencing the Dodgers to stay, other bidders for the club apparently considered them quite good.

"I simply am not in Mr Rockefeller's league," declared Los Angeles financier Elliott Evans, who offered $5,500,000 for the Dodgers last Sunday. "My offer hasn't been refused yet but I think with every delay the odds go more in Brooklyn's favor of remaining here."

Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles, who once was confident the Dodgers would be playing in his city next year, wasn't quite so sure now that Rockefeller is attempting to keep them here.

"With Mr. Rockefeller in the picture, our chances don't look too good," he said. "There's a limit to how much government can spend."

Here's the Easiest Route to Windber

Here's the easiest (not necessarily the shortest) route to Windber — Go through Greensburg, stay on Route 30 until you come to a place named Reel's Corners which is a junction with Route 160. Here you turn left or in other words, take Route 160 to the left, and you are on the way to Windber. The entire trip is about 78 miles, one way.

Jefferson, Lincoln Post Victories as 1,000 Fans Watch

Upsets marked the opening night of the 1957 Midget Football League season here last night with approximately 1,000 fans witnessing the exciting double-header.

The biggest surprise was the 7-6 loss suffered by Bucky Lutes' Vocational eleven in the second game at the hands of Carmen DeMarco's Jeffersons, the first defeat suffered by the Lutesmen in 10 games.

In the opening encounter of the evening Lincoln topped Frank-Lin 6-0 for the first Lincoln opener win in three seasons.

Coach Dale Simpson's Lincoln boys scored a touchdown in the second period, then hung on grimly to nip Frank-Lin.

Stanely Hamlin, a shifty halfback, scored the only touchdown, breaking away for 51 yards on a razzle-dazzel double-reverse. The extra point try was no good, but the winners didn't need it.

Hamlin also ripped off a 40 yard gain the first period, moving to the Frank-Lin 37 for his team's only other threat.

Frank-Lin threatened most of the night, but couldn't cross into the diagonals. Early in the game, Coach Alex Kachmarik's boys blocked a punt at the Lincoln 24 and moved to the five before running out of steam.

The Frank-Lin lads were at the Lincoln 13 when time ran out in the second quarter. They managed to get as far as the ten in a four period try.

First downs favored the losers, four to three.

The second encounter saw Vocational finding itself in a hole in the very first quarter when Eric Crabtree took personal charge of the Jeffersons. After a Richard Steele to James Frezzell pass netted 23 yards to the Vocational 25, the Jeffs were penalized back to the 30. Here Crabtree took the ball and reeled off a run to the Vocational three from where he cracked over for a TD a moment later. He also ran for the extra point on a reverse for a 7-0 lead.

Vocational, paced by fullback Ralph Nuzzaci, roared back with a drive to the Jefferson 15 in the first period and again in the second quarter to the foe's 10 mainly on a Nuzzaci to Paul Barton pass but still couldn't dent the stout Jefferson defense into pay dirt.

In the third period Nuzzaci again spearheaded a drive to the Jefferson 23 but again the Demarcomen held on downs.

Finally in the fourth quarter following a Jefferson fumble, Tommy Hornak took off on a brilliant run to the Jefferson 28, Nuzzaci carried to the 24, Hornak ate up 19 yards to the five from where Nuzzaci punched it across in three tries but couldn't make it on the extra point attempt and that was the game, 7-6.

Ironically first downs favored the losers by a whopping 12-4. It was only the third loss suffered by a Lutes-coached Midget entry in five seasons.

The Monessen High School band entertained the fans prior to the game.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Quick Tee Hooks

The snap-hooked tee shot plagues many golfers. You know the type I mean. It goes out low for maybe a hundred yards, and then ducks quickly down and left.

The almost unvarying cause of this shot is the rolling over of the hands before the ball is met. When the hands roll over too quickly, the clubface is shut as it comes into the ball. This shut clubface keeps the ball to low and clubface keeps the ball lo wand sends it off to the left, giving the ball a right-to-left spin.

The cure here is to position the ball far enough back so that the hands will not have rolled over and closed the clubface before the ball is contacted. But you also want the ball far enough forward to be contacted at the bottom of the swing arc. The proper position, to take care of you on both these counts, is just opposite the instep of the left foot.

Braves Edge Pirates, 4-3, on Homers by Aaron, Ed Mathews

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—The Milwaukee Braves and Pittsburgh Pirates meet today with the western club trying to hold its 5½-game lead in the National League and the Pirates once again struggling to get out of the cellar.

The Braves downed the Pirates Tuesday night 4-3, with Hank Aaron hitting his 40th home run of the season and Ed Mathews his 31st.

In losing, Pittsburgh dropped a half-game behind the Chicago Cubs in the battle-for-the-basement.

On the mound for Pittsburgh will be Ron Kline (7-15) against Warren Spahn, who will be seeking his 20th victory.

Eagerness Keeps Musial Sidelined

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Stan Musial, crowding baseball's brightest stars for all - time records, remained sidelined today mainly because of his own eagerness to rejoin his St Louis Cardinal teammates.

The Redbirds have only the slimmest of chances to capture the 1957 pennant, but they still hold second place over the Brooklyn Dodgers. Musial's presence in the lineup could make the difference in whether the Cards take the runner-up share in what could be the biggest World Series jackpot of them all.

Sunday, when his pinch - hit played a key part in the uphill 4-3, conquest of Cincinnati, he took a full round of fielding practice as well as a long turn in the batting cage.

Since his heavy Sunday workout, Musial has more trouble throwing than hitting, suffering a muscle spasm when he gets the ball away.

"I believe his trouble now is a combination of stiffness from the unaccustomed heavy workout and the original injury," trainer Bob Bauman said.

Combs have been used by all people in every age for dressing the hair.

DENVER (UP) — Young Alex Miteff of Argentina knocked out veteran Johnny Holman at 2:32 of the ninth round Tuesday night at Denver Coliseum to continue unbeaten in 12 professional heavyweight bouts.

Miteff, 22-year-old aspirant to Floyd Patterson's crown, felled the 30-year-old Chicagoan with a left to the head, followed by a right to the face.

Steelers Sign 'Jug' Girard, New Aide

LIGONIER, Pa. (UP)— New Pittsburgh Steeler coach Buddy Parker banked today on a 10-year-veteran and former protege to add potence to his team's attack.

The Steelers picked up halfback Earl (Jug) Girard in a cash deal with the Baltimore Colts and released halfback Curley Johnson, who came to the Steelers from the University of Houston by way of the Canadian League, and Lionel Reed, a fullback returning from service after one season with Pittsburgh.

Girard, a Wisconsin University player who was drafted by Green Bay and then went to Detroit to play under Parker before being sold to Baltimore last winter, was expected to take over the punting duties which have been handled in the exhibition season by the departing Johnson.

The Steelers also announced the signing of former Purdue University, Boston Yanks and Chicago Cardinals halfback Boris Dimancheff a assistant coach.

Robin Roberts' Fine Reputation Now Little More Than Memory

By FRED DOWN

The once - great reputation of Robin Roberts was little more than a memory today when he entered the 20-game circle — the wrong one.

The durable Philadelphia right-hander, who won 20 or more games from 1950 through 1955, was tagged with his 20th loss of the year Tuesday night when the St. Louis Cardinals kept pace with the Milwaukee Braves by beating the Phillies, 4-3, in 14 innings. The Braves retained their 5½ - game lead with a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Roberts, who took over in the 11th inning with the score tied, 3-3, shut out the Cardinals for three innings. But the Redbirds filled the bases on singles by pitcher Lindy McDaniel and Joe Cunningham plus an intentional walk to Eddie Miksis. Ken Boyer followed with a single that broke up the long contest.

McDaniel Receives Win

McDaniel, who took over in the 13th inning, received credit for his 14th win of the campaign compared to eight defeats.

The Braves, with Hank Aaron back hitting second and Johnny Logan back at shortstop, shaded the Pirates as Lew Burdette chalked up his 15th win. Aaron blasted his 40th homer and Ed Mathews walloped his 31st to tie the club mark of 182 homers in a season set in 1955. Burdette singled and scored on singles by Red Schoendienst and Mathews in the seventh for the run that proved decisive.

The Chicago Cubs romped over the Brooklyn Dodgers, 9-2, and the Cincinnati Redlegs whipped the New York Giants, 4-1, in other NL games while the Boston Red Sox knocked the Chicago White Sox six games behind the New York Yankees, with a 7-4 triumph in the only American League game played.

Banks Belts Two

Ernie Banks smashed his 35th and 36th homers and drove in four runs to lead a 13-hit Cub attack that brought Dick Drott his 14th triumph. Drott yielded seven hits and seven walks but left 10 Dodgers stranded. Sandy Koufax suffered his fourth loss for the folding NL champions.

Brooks Lawrence's three - hit pitching and Joe Taylor's two-run homer were the big blows for the Redlegs, who dealt Johnny Antonelli his 15th defeat. Lawrence also contributed a single to a Cincinnati seventh - inning rally as he gained his 15th victory of the season.

The Red Sox used three relief pitchers to shut down a three-run White Sox rally in the ninth and preserve Tom Brewer's 16th win. The Red Sox scored five runs in the third inning, climaxed by Jim Piersall's 17th homer, to open up a 7-1 lead which Brewer protected until the ninth.

Rain caused three postponements Tuesday. Games between the Yankees and Indians, Senators and Tigers and Orioles and Athletics were washed out.

Harmony Keynote Of NBA Confab

DENVER (UP) — Harmony was the keynote of the 38th annual National Boxing Assn. convention that ended Tuesday, as controversial issues failed to get past the talking stage.

The 104 delegates from the Western Hemisphere spent two days discussing minor affairs, but refused to go too deeply into issues that might offend members from any particular area.

Abe Greene of Paterson, N.J., was reelected national commissioner unanimously. Before adjournment, the delegates chose Las Vegas, Nev., for the site of the 1958 meeting.

NEW MONONGAHELA RIVER DOCK — This 1,065 foot long dock at Bunola was completed recently by the Dravo Corp., Pittsburgh, for the Monongahela River Terminals Corp. The dock, consisting of 11 sheet steel pile cells filled with sand and gravel and topped with concrete, is part of the new rail-river terminal at Bunola, which also includes a huge revolving electric crane, railroad scales and bulk storage materials. Dravo dredged 40,000 cubic yards of material from the river bottom to provide a harbor.

Religious Training Program For Students not Successful

Both Protestant and Catholic clergymen agreed today that a release time program for religious training of Monessen High School students has been anything but successful in the past.

As a matter of fact, only one Protestant minister in the city has indicated that he will conduct classes this term.

Monessen's Catholic parishes are obliged under orders from Bishop Hugh L. Lamb of the Greensburg Diocese to continue the religious instructions but some radical changes are planned.

The program to date has been unsuccessful, despite complete cooperation by school officials who have released students one-hour each week for religious training. Parents were required to sign consent slips and ministers were asked to make formal application for the early school dismissal.

"About 300 of our students took part in the Catholic program last year," explained Henry Furio, Monessen High principal. "Only one Protestant church conducted classes during the 1956-57 term — the Evangelical United Brethren Church."

Program Unsuccessful

A few years ago, the city's Protestant churches conducted a religious program on a cooperative basis.

"We ran into trouble when some ministers could not agree on the text," reported the Rev. Vernon Bowers, pastor of the First Christian Church.

"It was decided that the churches would each conduct their own classes. For many of them, there aren't enough students to organize a training program."

The Rev. Lester Crum, pastor of the United Evangelical Church, conducted the only Protestant religious instruction program last year. He plans to organize another school although he will limit it to junior high students.

"We hope to begin classes next week with about 15 students participating," he said.

The Catholic instruction started off with a bang last year when 300 high school students reported to St. Cajetan for instruction. But by the end of the year, few of them were showing up.

"It was not entirely the students fault," informed one priest. "Too often there was no instructor to handle the large class. On several occasions the priest who was scheduled to teach was called away on other business."

Attendance Poor

Then, too, the student attendance was poor when the religious classes conflicted with school activities.

Rev. Joseph Gajdosik, pastor at Holy Name Church, said he will probably organize a class of his own students. He said he is seriously considering evening classes rather than taking advantage of the release-time offer.

Rev. James L. Conway, assistant pastor at St. Leonard who was one of the priests in charge of the Catholic cooperative effort last year, said that each Catholic parish will probably conduct a school of its own. He said plans for the St. Leonard program will be announced later.

In sharp contrast to Monessen, the religious training program has proved very successful in Belle Vernon and Rostraver Twp.

Both Catholic and Protestant classes are held regularly in those districts with attendance reported to be "very good."

Test Missile Is Exploded

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP) —A missile streaked straight up from the Air Force's top secret guided missile test center here Tuesday night and apparently exploded about 20 miles in the sky.

Authorities were silent today about what happened.

A witness who watched the sleek projectile blast away from the launcing pads from several miles away said it "blew to pieces like a Roman candle coming apart" several minutes after leaving the ground.

The Defense Department in Washington declined comment on Tuesday night's operation and authorities here would not even confirm a missile had been fired.

More Reports On Marriage Of Princess

LONDON (UP) — Buckingham Palace refused comment today on a London newspaper report that Princess Margaret will marry long-time escort Billy Wallace before leaving on her trip to the West Indies next April.

The tabloid Daily Sketch devoted its entire front page to "the princess, marriage and Billy Wallace."

"It is now believed that Princess Margaret has decided to marry soon and that her husband to be is Mr. Billy Wallace, for years her constant companion and escort," said Guy Eden, the Sketch's political correspondent.

No other London newspaper carried the report and officials at Buckingham Palace continued their practice of ignoring statements concerning Princess Margaret's romances.

Proper Zoning Enforcement Will Be Needed

(This is the last in a series of six articles on a proposed new zoning ordinance for Monessen.)

Like any regulatory measure, the new zoning ordinance proposed for Monessen has built into it the machinery for proper administration. But again like all laws, it cannot be effective unless it is backed by a conscientious and determined attitude on the part of responsible public officials.

The ordinance proposes appointment by City Council of a zoning officer, whose duty it would be to see that the regulations are properly applied. Anyone wishing to build a structure of any kind would be required to obtain a building permit indicating compliance with the zoning law. Likewise, an occupancy permit would be required of anyone wishing to occupy an existing building or to make use of a piece of property.

Any person who felt that the ordinance was being improperly interpreted by the zoning officer or that the ordinance was causing him undue hardship would be permitted an appeal to a Board of Adjustment. The board, appointed by Council, would be required to hold public hearings on such appeals. Further appeal could of course be made to the civil courts.

Specific Powers

Although the Board of Adjustment could not change the ordinance, it would have these specific powers:

1. To make a decision in the event of a disagreement on interpretation of the ordinance.

2. To grant exceptional uses provided these special uses meet standards spelled out in the ordinance.

3. To adjust the application of the regulations wherever unusual slopes, shapes or peculiar physical properties would work severe hardships on a property owner.

Only City Council could amend the ordinance, although amendments could be asked either by the Planning Commission or by a majority of property owners involved in a proposed change. Public hearings would be required on any change.

An important section of the ordinance has to do with non-conforming uses. Monessen is already largely built up and some land uses do not comply with the requirements of the new regulations. It would not be reasonable to declare such uses illegal immediately upon passage of the ordinance. Therefore provision is made that buildings remain in their present uses for a period of years which would permit owners to amortize investments.

To Hold Hearings

In commercial and industrial districts the ordinance would emphasize natural economic processes for the gradual elimination of non-conforming uses. In residential zones non-conforming structures would be subject to removal or alteration within periods of 10 to 40 years, depending on the type of construction.

Owners of non-conforming uses would be permitted to maintain their buildings within the limits set by the ordinance, but major additions or expansion would not be allowed.

The new zoning ordinance is a proposal of the City Planning Commission to implement the comprehensive plan for Monessen, which has been in preparation during the last year and a half. The proposed ordinance is based upon similar ordinances enacted elsewhere and on the experience of other communities where planning is bringing about broad civic improvements.

The Planning Commission will hold hearings on the proposed ordinance Tuesday Sept. 17 and Wednesday, Sept. 25. City Council will hold other hearings on dates to be announced.

The ordinance undoubtedly would bring great changes to Monessen over a period of years. Before it became law it would have to have public understanding and support. After it became law it would have to have thorough enforcement by sincere public officers if it was to be an effective, practical tool for the betterment of Monessen.

PITTSBURGH (UP) — The appointment of Norman L. Braun as manager of the United Press Pittsburgh bureau was announced today by Gerald J. Rock, UP Eastern Division manager.

Wasn't Kidding About not Working

CARDIFF, Wales (UP)—Judge Guy Sixsmith let Herbert Hooley off with a light $5.60 fine for speeding Tuesday when Hooley said he was unemployed.

Hooley paid the fine immediately. Then he left the courtroom, climbed into his new Jaguar, drove to his new $28,000 home and changed out of his $112 custom-tailored suit.

What Hooley did not tell the judge was that he quit his job after winning $210,000 in a lottery.

"He might have thought I was boasting," Hooley explained.

Heart Replacement Explained by Surgeon

CHICAGO (UP) — A Baltimore, Md., surgeon today described a successful heart replacement in dogs and said similar heart transplants among humans may be "within the realm of practicability."

Dr. Edgar F. Berman of Sinai Hospital in Baltimore described the historic operation in an address before the 42nd annual congress of the International College of Surgeons.

He made the report on behalf of himself and two collaborators, Dr. Mauricio Golberg, surgeon of Cordova, Argentina, and Dr. Leonard Akman, cardiologist at Sinai Hospital.

"Replacement of the damaged or incompetent heart, long a challenge to the imagination, may be within the realm of practicability," he said.

Berman said actually two heart replacements were accomplished in dogs, but in the first case the heart functioned for only 21 minutes.

In the second operation, the heart worked for one hour and 57 minutes before going into erratic action. The heart was restored to normal beat several times later through artificial pacemaker stimulation.

"This apparently could have been sustained longer with the use of the pacemaker," Berman said. "The experiment was purposefully terminated."

Berman said that one of the most important factors of the experiment was that until only recently, the survival of transplanted tissue and organs between the same specie has been limited, except in the case of identical twins where successful kidney transplants have been performed.

Young Professor Falls to Death, Clothes Afire

ITHACA, N.Y. (UP)—A young college professor, his clothes ablaze, ran frantically along a city street Tuesday, then leaped to his death from a creek-spanning bridge in a desperate effort to end his agony.

He landed on a pile of rocks in shallow water 100 feet below and was killed instantly.

The victim was Raurie David Dunlap, 23, who was to have begun his duties next week as associate professor of radio-television at Ithaca College.

Dunlap, the son of a Lehigh University professor, was cleaning his motorbike in the hallway of the apartment building where he lived. Fuel from the vehicle somehow ignited his dungarees and T-shirt.

While doing graduate work the last two years, Dunlap was on the staff of station WGBH-TV in Cambridge, Mass. Previously he worked in WHOC in Allentown, Pa., his home town; and WIDE in Biddeford, Maine.

W&J Freshmen to Begin on Sept. 16

This year's freshman class at Washington and Jefferson College numbers 235 men, the majority of whom are from the Tri-state area. Two foreign students, one from China, the other from France, increase to seven the number of foreign enrollees who lend an international touch to the 700-member student body.

The newcomers will have a three-day orientation period starting Sept. 16 and classes begin Sept. 19.

According to Frederick J. Frank, director of admissions, high school grades of the first year men are higher on the average than their predecessors', most of the men being in the upper two-fifths of their graduating class.

The freshman combine normal physique with their mental alertness, averaging five-feet, eight inches in height and 157 pounds in weight. About fifteen percent of the students will receive scholarship aid. It was also noted, in reviewing statistics of the class, that some ten percent fewer members will be commuting from homes this year compared to last year.

The entire student body at the 175-year-old liberal arts college will benefit from several capital improvements either recently completed or nearing completion.

The splendidly designed and equipped Student Center just finished will provide a focal point for student activities; new steel and concrete stands and other renovations are being completed at College Field; Thompson Memorial Library will have new stacks to provide for some 10,000 volumes by the time classes are underway and the campus in general is being improved by landscaping.

Queen Elizabeth To Fly Here in American Plane

LONDON (UP) — Red-faced British airline officials today picked an American - built plane over a British plane to fly Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip to North America next month.

Gerald Derlanger, chairman of British Overseas Airways Corp., said a DC-7-C probably would be used to take the royal couple across the Atlantic to Canada and the United States.

The British-built Britannia 312, originally selected to fly them to Montreal, has been delayed by production holdups.

The first of 18 of the new turbo-prop planes on order will be delivered to BOAC Wednesday but airline officials decided not to take a chance on using it so soon after delivery.

The announcement was a blow to British pride and apparently to the Queen herself.

Derlanger said BOAC had not been approached officially by Buckingham Palace about the flight but had been told the Queen had expressed "a preference to fly British."

The first meeting of the Rostraver Parent-Teacher Association for the current school term was held in the Rostraver High School library Monday. Mrs. Eva Altier, president, was in charge.

Lena Carson offered the invocation and the pledge of allegiance was given by the assemblage.

Theme for the month is "Let's Get Acquainted".

E. F. Carter, superintendent of township public schools, spoke on "We Must Go Forward, not Backward or Stand Still". He also commented on schools and their advancements. He praised the P. T. A. for the work they have done and the progressive program they have outlined.

Reports were given by Leona Stewart, recording secretary; Peg Massa, treasurer, and Kay Yoder, corresponding secretary.

A letter from the School Board gave the P. T. A. permission to use the school for meetings in accordance with school policy.

Various chairmen gave reports: Alice Criss, program; Mary Nega, membership; Frances Pasierb, ways and means and historian, and Lena Carson, hospitality.

The attendance banner was won by Second Grade students taught by Mrs. Kopp. The group voted to send Mrs. Altier and Mrs. Stewart as delegates to a convention in Philadelphia next month.

Following a game called "Meet Mrs. P. T. A." was played. Guests present included Mrs. Stieska and Mrs. Zoretich, both of Monessen

Lunch was served in the home economics room by the officers.

Defects Start in Infancy

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Early recognition and prompt correctional treatment of any visual difficulties a youngster might have is the best way of protecting his eyesight. It's also one of the best means of protecting his reading ability, his school grades and of staving off a distinct possibility for a poor reader — the threat of juvenile delinquency.

Yet it is often an extremely difficult job to recognize an eye defect in a child. You can't expect the youngster himself to complain of ocular difficulties; he just won't do it.

So parents must be on the lookout for the telltale signs that might indicate seeing difficulties.

We have licked one vicious eye enemy, the long feared "babies sore eyes," a blinding condition caused by unhygienic conditions present at birth.

Now this doesn't mean that a child's eyes are perfectly safe until he begins to strain them by reading too much. Quite the contrary, you've got to be especially alert for eye troubles during infancy.

If there is a familial eye disease, prenatal maternal disease or if the baby was premature, then you've got to keep an even closer check.

What should you look for?

Well, perhaps the eyes themselves may not appear healthy. Swollen, red or encrusted eyelids with recurring sties, crossed eyes or uneven position of the eyes, inflamed and watery eyes, or constant rapid motion of the eyeballs mean the eyes deserve attention.

Other signs of possible trouble include: aimless rolling of the eyes in infancy, frowning or squinting when looking at distant objects, tilting or twisting the head when looking at things, holding objects too closely, a marked sensitivity to light, frequent rubbing of the eyes, attempts to brush away a blur with the hand or stumbling over small objects.

Development activities of the child may be delayed. Perhaps he will fail to follow objects with his eyes at the usual age; a creeping child will fail to pick up small objects. With eye trouble, he may be unable to identify familiar distant objects. If he fails to learn colors by the age of four it might signify color blindness.

Generally, about five per cent of school-age boys present evidence of color deficiency, and about one per cent of the girls have the same trouble.

In Hollywood—

Marie McDonald in Comeback as Singer

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Marie (The Body) McDonald is movieland's front-running candidate for come-back honors of 1957.

Less than a year ago the blonde beauty was in the midst of a bitter separation battle with husband Harry Karl, millionaire shoe magnate, and her career was on the rocks.

Since then Marie has had a baby, survived an alleged kidnaping, reconciled with Karl and become a very hot property in night clubs. At 34 (and with 38-24-36½ measurements) she is launching a major league singing career.

Wha hoppen?

"I wanted to get my husband back," Marie explains.

"He likes glamour girls. I was a glamour girl when he married me. But I became a dull housewife. And if keeping our marriage intact means that I have to continue with the glamour routine, that's exactly what I'll do."

Each time the Karls separated Harry dated the likes of Zsa Zsa Gabor and other high - powered sirens.

The couple was divorced in 1954 and remarried a year later.

"We've been married 11 years with time out for bad behavior. But now things are fine again and the squabbles have been worth it all," she laughed, twirling a new square-cut 25 carat diamond ring.

Dating her comeback from the weird kidnaping circus of last January, Marie said her first night club appearance in Reno sounded as if she were capitalizing on the publicity.

"The attitude of the opening-night audience was, 'Ok so what can you do to entertain people?' and I had to deliver or I would have been the biggest flop in show business.

"I started singing like I never sang before. I dropped the 'body' title and kept my wardrobe in good taste.

"It worked out just great. Since then I've had more offers than I can handle."

Marie recently returned from Europe where she starred with Bob Hope in the first of his new filmed television series. She has a movie pending, three record albums in the works, and a TV series coming up.

"Later this month I open at the Moulin Rouge here in Hollywood. Then I go to the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and the Plaza in New York.

"Harry wanted a glamour girl," she smiled, "and now he's got one?"

World of Television—

Pinky Lee Critic of Kid Shows

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) —"I'm an overhauled Pinky Lee," said the small man at the table. "I'm a rejuvenated Pinky Lee.

"I've slowed down, On my old TV show, I tried to crowd so much in, I found myself running — galloping — through things. No more. I work now toward that unseen audience out there and I'm less frantic about the kid in the studio. I'm warmer.

"I make less money than I used to, but this is my backyard, this is where my greatest happiness lies—with a show for kids. And I say that even though kids can be cruel at times, terribly cruel."

Lee, a St. Paul, Minn., citizen who lisped a curious path through Gus Edwards' troupe to vaudeville to burlesque and into TV kiddie entertainment pulled out of TV in 1956. He returned in June of this year on an NBC Saturday kid show called "Gumby."

Good Commercial Market

"We're at the bottom of a cycle for kid shows now," he said mournfully. "And I find in my tours around the country, mothers are pretty concerned about the lack of good shows for children on TV.

"Right now the networks would like to get away from kid shows. I've been told they would like to eliminate them. But they're making a big mistake and so are the advertisers because when a kid sees something advertised on a show, he tells his mother to go buy it.

"The thing is, some of the entertainment they show on TV for kids is terrible. Some of those cartoon shows feature murder and mayhem and distortion and all they do is frighten children.

"And some of those Westerns. They feature shooting and blood and gore. I've seen Westerns with terrible things in them — wives watching their husbands get shot, Indians massacring people with tomahawks. Between Westerns and gangster films it's terrible what the kids get to watch."

Target For Critics

Lee admitted he has been a favorite target of critics himself. "I've drawn fire and been slapped by critics who couldn't see me for anything," said Lee with unconcern. "There was a lot of talk when I was on my old show for two-and-a - half years whether Pinky Lee was in good taste. They didn't like my burlesque background and they didn't think I was funny.

More than 700 kinds of mushrooms have been proven to be edible.

Chimp Sues for $500,000

NEW YORK (UP) — Television chimp J. Fred Muggs claimed Tuesday that Dave Garroway and two associates tried to make a monkey of him to the tune of $500,000.

Garroway, announcer Jack Lescoulie and an associate named Jac Hein had conspired to wreck his well - paid career, J. Fred charged, and he was plenty peeved about it.

So peeved he was, in fact, that he put on his best blue sneakers, red pants, and fur-trimmed calfskin windbreaker and hied himself by taxi down to state Supreme Court.

The 5-year-old chimpanzee loped up to clerk Charles McGovern's office toting a 15-page legal document. He shoved the hairy fistful of papers across McGovern's desk and McGovern nearly fainted.

"In 40 years, I never saw anything like this," McGovern said.

It was all right there in the papers, Muggs indicated. The suit charged Garroway and his associates didn't renew Muggs' $1,275-a-week contract five months ago and as a result the wolf was knocking at the monkey's door.

It charged further that because of public statements made after Muggs left Garroway's "Today" show, the chimp had been unable to get much work on other programs.

Some of these unkind statements, the suit charged, were to the effect that J. Fred was "ready for pasture," was getting too hard to handle, was developing a bay window, and had shown a tendency to bite.

Say all this about other monkeys and it's okay, but not about J. Fred Muggs, huffed J. Fred Muggs.

STUDENTS LEARN SALESMANSHIP — Thomas Bickanich, new Distributive Education teacher at Monessen High School, is instructing a group of senior students on selling techniques. The MHS seniors learn selling theory during classroom work in the morning, then gain actual experience by working in stores through the city in the afternoon. The program has the endorsement of the Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

Writing Nun Thanks Pittsburgh Editor Who Fired Her from Job

WASHINGTON (UP)—"You never know what God has up his sleeve for you, so to speak," said the bright-eyed nun in her grey habit.

Sister Maria Del Rey might well have been speaking for all the more than 600 delegates to the eighth annual meeting of the Mission-Sending Societies of the Roman Catholic Church.

Priests, nuns and Catholic lay missionaries in varying garbs and accents from far-off corners of the globe are turning their headquarters hotel here into a sort of international parish where Africa is as well - represented as Maryknoll, N.Y.

Sister Maria Del Rey, a newspaperwoman turned nun, is from the Maryknoll Mission—when she's not in Asia, South America or some other spot on the globe. But for the three-day meeting she has taken under her wing the 200 sisters from 45 orders attending the sessions, and also is lending a hand in the press room.

Recalls Firing

Described as a crackerjack reporter from her stint on the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Press, Sister Maria Del Rey has chalked up an awesome total of five big-selling books in six years to prove her writing prowess.

She recalled with a laugh that her city editor "had the nerve" to fire her in 1933 just after she'd returned from covering an unemployment demonstration. Now she thinks the Depression - born firing was "God's way to give me a push from behind."

After leaving the Press, she entered the Maryknoll Mission as a postulant. "I'd wanted to do it since high school, but I didn't have the backbone," she explained.

Then her travels began. Hawaii was her first stop in 1938, a stint that included three years in a Japanese internment camp. Her weight dropped down to 104 pounds. She has since "improved it by 60 pounds."

Books Follow Internment

A 1948-49 trip through Asia and China brought forth her first book, "Pacific Hopscotch," which was followed by "Nun In Red China," "In And Out The Andes" and "Bernie Becomes A Nun." "Bernie" is her most successful book to date.

Her next book, to be published next month, is "Her Name Is Mercy" and deals with a Maryknoll Mission team in Korea. The short, ample nun describes all her books as "lighter side" efforts—"I can't be heavy except in dimensions."

Sister Maria Del Rey has invited the city editor who fired her to an "autographing party" a Pittsburgh department store is holding for her and her new book next month.

"He's a newspaperman from the old school," said the nun who used to cover fires. "I hope he can come. I've got no regrets."

Pittsburgh Gets $325,000 Grant

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Federal Urban Renewal Administration gave Pittsburgh, Pa., $325,000 today for planning the development of two blighted neighborhoods.

An advance of $168,000 is to be used for the East Liberty urban renewal area. It affects 258 acres to be redeveloped as residential.

The agency advanced $157,000 for the Chateau Street, west urban renewal area. The 164-acre industrial area will be redeveloped for manufacturing.

20 Senior Students Learning as They Do

Twenty senior students at Monessen High School have enrolled in the novel Distributive Education course for the 1957-58 term.

They will divide their school day between classroom work and "on-the-job" training.

The course was added to the school curriculum three years ago. And school authorities are more than pleased with the results.

"Our DE course will be instructed this year for the first time by Thomas Bickanich," reported Henry Furio, Monessen High principal. "He is now assigning his students to his training spots."

Bickanich joined the MHS faculty last January as a commercial teacher. A native of Rural Ridge, he is a graduate of Indiana State Teachers College.

Bickanich will instruct the students for three hours every morning on such subjects as salesmanship and knowing merchandise.

In the afternoon, he will send the students to actual selling jobs in city stores.

The Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce is again cooperating in the program. City merchants will provide jobs in their stores for the students, paying them wages comparable with those of other beginning workers.

"Several graduates of the DE course now hold responsible positions in the retailing field," pointed out Furio. "We are convinced that the program is a valuable one."

Louisiana Flu Outbreak Watched

WASHINGTON (UP) — Public health officials kept an anxious eye today on an outbreak of Asian flu in Louisiana, fearing the start of an epidemic.

The state has an estimated 60,000 cases of Asian flu — half of them in New Orleans.

Assistant Surgeon General William H. Stewart told the United Press the Public Health Service is watching the Louisiana situation closely. He said it is "a little early to tell whether this is the beginning of the spread of Asian flu around the country."

Old Political Maxim About Maine Now Out

PORTLAND, Maine (UP) — Maine's famous weather vane election, which sometimes pointed the wrong way, was pointed without question today toward its own oblivion in 1960.

The voters of the state decided to abandon the early election in Monday's special referendum election.

Maine will vote once more in September, next year.

Then, in 1960, it will elect its officials along with the rest of the nation in November.

This means that the unreliable old political maxim, "As Maine Goes, So Goes the Nation," will no longer be pertinent.

Principal reason for dropping the early election was that in presidential years Maine had to bear the costs of two elections—one for its congressmen, senators and state officials and one for the President.

The state has voted on the second Monday in September since it broke away from Massachusetts and became a state in 1820—137 years ago.
